Morris Midget Boxwood Bonsai

$31.50

Boxwood is a category of evergreen shrubs with approximately 70 different species. Typically found in the rocky hills of Africa, Asia, Central America, and Europe, the Boxwood is small, making them ideal for bonsai. In the springtime, the Boxwood will display male flowers of beautiful yellow, surrounded by single, female flowers.

Although you have many choices for bonsai, the two that work best for bonsai are the Japanese Box (Buxus microphylla) and the Common Box (Buxus sempervirens). For both of these species, you would find leaves of glossy, dark green. The only real difference between these two species of Boxwood is size, with the Japanese Box being a slower growing and smaller version.
